FORMER SELECTMAN ARTHUR GAUTHIER

in Strong Terms Denies Graft Charges.

Trade Goes Where Applicants Say They Trade.

To the Editor of the Citizen:
There appeared in the Rumford Falls Times last week a communication with an editorial endorsement, accusing me of using my office of selectman, during the last year of my incumbency of that position, to turn to my own profit the town pauper business. The facts are that at all times when help is given to persons in distress, in the way of orders on storekeepers the orders are made out to such dealers as the parties have been trading with. I followed that rule, and I think all the dealers in town will bear me out in my statement. As for the case of supplies through Geo. N. Marshall, that the Times tries to make out were from my store and that the name of a clerk then in my employ, was used to cover up the deal, I will say that if the editor had been more thorough in his verification he would have found out that the Geo. N. Marshall lived in Mexico and the money was paid to him for boarding persons that had called upon the town of Rumford for help. There was no connection between the Geo. Marshall that worked for me and that person. The amount of profit made on all the goods supplied from my store during the time spoken of would not be of consequence enough to cause me or anyone else to lift a finger to obtain, in any manner not open and above board. It is my advice to the correspondent and the editor of the Times to busy themselves about things of real moment, and not try to turn the attention of people from greater concerns in public affairs.

ARTHUR GAUTHIER.
Rumford, Me., Aug. 2, 1909.

STOLE MONEY—BOY SENT TO REFORM SCHOOL.

Sunday afternoon, Rev. A. J. Verrill, who while preaching in town is living in a tent on Hancock street, Rumford, needed ten dollars in money and a check for ten dollars. The money and check were in a pocket book in the tent.
Monday morning the matter was brought to the attention of Officer Frank A. Brooks, through the Chief of Police, A. B. O'Leary.
Mr. Brooks made inquiries of Mr. Verrill, and got a good description of a boy that had been seen near the tent. Mr. Brooks soon located him, and after some questioning, learned from him of another boy that had been in the vicinity. He followed the matter up until he had six boys under surveillance. He then learned of still another lad that had been seen in the vicinity, and started in search of him. He was not long in locating the lad in the woods near Pine street. As soon as the boy saw the officer he ran like mad, and escaped, but the officer found a way to catch him, and found the money. All but a dollar was accounted for. He had given $3 to another boy. They had spent about a dollar. The check was not found. The boy says he saw no check.
The lad's name is Arthur Foss. He came here with his parents from Gardiner about a year ago and has been detected in several dishonest transactions, in fact has a mania for doing things that are wrong. His parents are respectable folks.
He was before Recorder Stevenson Monday and entered a plea of guilty, and was sentenced to the Reform School.

OPENING OF DORMITORY.

The new dormitory, now under construction for Gould's Academy, will be opened to students with the beginning of the fall term. All boarding and residing pupils will be expected to live there, unless for some special reason, they are given permission to live elsewhere.
Girls who wish to board themselves will pay the regular price for room and will be given free use of a dining room and kitchen provided for the purpose.
Students desiring board or room should make application to the Principal at once.

R. F. L. & W. COMPANY MAKE A METER RATE

For Lighting Rumford Falls Corporation.

Proposition Accepted by The Corporation.

Oliver Pettengill called the Rumford Village Corporation meeting to order Friday night, and Hon. Waldo Pettengill was made chairman. There were but few there. There was a vote taken to build a hose house on the McGregor Annex road, $200 was appropriated for the purpose. That buys the reel as well as erects the building. The location of it was left to the assessors. The committee that had the electric lighting proposition in hand reported favorably on the offer of the R. F. L. & W. Co. to light the streets. The committee reported adversely on a former proposition, and the matter was re-committed to them. The present proposition which was accepted by the meeting on motion of Henry Nelson is in substance as follows:
The Lighting company will furnish lights on the metre system for one year at 6 cents per K. W. hour. For five years at 5 cents per K. W. hour, the corporation to control the hours of lighting and to stand expense of broken and injured lamps and fixtures that are so broken and injured without the fault of the Lighting company. The Lighting company to furnish all renewals and stand all expense of broken and injured lamps and fixtures caused by its own carelessness. If the system of lighting is changed from arc to incandescent, the expense will be borne equally by both parties. Changes in location of lamps to be borne by the corporation. Extensions at the expense of the company.
R. L. Malcher, A. A. Hall, L. H. Veilleux, H. C. Dunton, F. B. Clark formed the committee.
The meeting then adjourned.

SUNDAY LAWS TO BE DIS- CUSSED.

Next Sunday night there will be a great mass meeting of the people of Rumford and Mexico. It will be held in the Cheney opera house. The principal speaker will be Prof. E. H. Longacre of Washington, D. C. This man has for many years been connected with the National Religious League, and is thoroughly and intimately acquainted with the law and the constitution of the United States. He will tell us things that never get over the Associated Press wires, and that politicians never tell the people. He will reveal to us the efforts that are systematically carried on in Washington to destroy the basic principle of the United States constitution. How the National Reform Association, with Rev. Wilbur P. Crafts at the head has been seeking to influence legislation on Sunday observance, and how the organization was grafted on to the government for several years to the extent of having the free use of the mails to send out its literature. How The Religious Liberty League exposed, and, after several years' hard work, succeeded in having the fraud stopped. He will tell us many things that will surprise us, and I think, facts that will be good for us to know. He will tell us, from his view point, the meaning of the Sunday laws and the result of their operation in the past and present. We may not agree with his conclusions, but his statements will be backed up by the most indisputable proof. I earnestly ask all good men and women of Rumford and Mexico attend this meeting.
MANLY A. BRIGHAM.

GOD DID NOT MAKE A DEVIL BUT THE

Archangel Became Wick- ed and is the Second

Great Power in the World Says Advent Elder.

At the Saturday night meeting in the Advent tent, Mr. F. B. Grant spoke upon the subject of the origin of sin. He said the object of the meetings they were holding, was to study the Scriptures, not what some one says of them, but what they say of themselves and for themselves. The origin of sin would be considered according to Scripture evidence. He cited the 23rd verse of the sixth chapter of Romans to show the penalty of sin. That reads "For the wages of sin is death. But the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." He cited the 7th verse which says "He that is dead is freed from sin." The line of thought that the speaker followed was that sin originated with the Dragon, or more commonly called the devil, and resulted in death. The great contest in the world is between the forces of the dragon and God. He made it appear that God gave eternal life, and perfect character.

The devil, once an arch angel, but in rebellion against God, introduced sin, and death came as a result of that sin. From the 15th v., 4 ch. of Romans, the speaker read "where there is no law there can be no sin." He then declared that sin was the transgression of the law. As the sin of Adam and Eve was before the ten commandments it was sometimes said that there was no transgression for there was no law at that time.

God said to Adam and Eve, "In the day that thou eatest of the fruit of the tree of knowledge... thou shalt surely die." God declared his law. The devil, in the form of a serpent declared to Eve that she should not surely die and she believed the serpent and ate of the fruit, and death was introduced into the world. The acceptance of Jesus Christ is the only escape. The wicked shall be destroyed and the righteous shall become possessed of eternal life.

He spoke of the wonderful prophecies, and quoted Scripture to show that all the contentions of the Advents are true if Scripture is true. He said that the devil was contending for the lives of men and women, and excepting God, the devil was the greatest power in the world, and to prove it, read from Revelations the account of the fight in heaven between the dragon and the angel of God. The services were made more interesting for questions from the audience were answered. Mr. Grant was able to turn to passages of Scripture to corner all points of the questions. Any one desiring to hear men who know the Bible thoroughly, will do well to go to these meetings.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT.

Sunday, near Herow Augur Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Goodspeed, and Mrs. Goodspeed's sister, all of Wilton, were thrown out of their auto. An axle broke and the machine went against a rock.
Mrs. Goodspeed was quite badly hurt and was taken home in another auto. The injured persons were given aid by several men who were in that vicinity from Rumford.

THE NEW HOSPITAL.

Dr. H. M. McCarthy has established the nucleus of what may develop into a large hospital. He has in the house at the corner of Echelon street and Chatham place opened a hospital that is capable of taking care of six patients at a time if necessary. The place is well equipped and there is a trained nurse there all the time, and two others are always within easy call. As the needs demand there will be an extension of the work, and room adequate to the increased call for hospital service will be provided.

WENT IN SWIMMING ALONE; WAS DROWNED.

Fate of Camile Bautain in the Androscoggin

At Rumford, Friday Night Near Morse Farm.

Friday night, July 30, at about half past seven, Camile Bautain, a young man about 18 years old, lost his life by drowning. The accident occurred on the east side of the river near the Morse farm. He was swimming and while near the boom was seized with cramps and drowned. As he was alone and no one saw the accident the circumstances are known only by the silent evidences.

The details are as follows. Camile, who lives with his parents on the river road, left home about 7 o'clock. About 8:30 Henry Thurston came to the river and seeing Edwin H. Thompson on the opposite side of the river called to him to know if he had seen anything of Floyd Sessions. Young Sessions had been away since morning, and they were wondering what had become of him. Mr. Thompson saw Floyd's boat on the shore, and concluded he must have gone to his father's at East Rumford. He telephoned and found that to be true. Mr. Thompson had heard a boat being rowed up the river about seven o'clock, and spoke of the circumstance to Mr. Thurston. As Mr. Thurston went along towards home he saw the boat that belonged to Bautain on the shore. When he got to the Bautain home he mentioned the fact. Mr. Bautain and others went to the shore and found the boy's clothing carefully folded and put in the bottom of the boat. Not being able to find any traces of him, it became evident that he had been in swimming and probably drowned.

The river was dragged for several hours, the search not being given up until past midnight. The next morning Edwin Thompson came to the Falls and got a chafin, the same as was used to get the body of Fred L. Babb, who was drowned near the Block mill a few weeks ago. It was not long before the body was caught by the chain, and brought to the surface. The arms and legs were twisted in such manner as to show conclusively that the lad was taken with cramps. The body was found about midway the river near the boom, just about the same distance from the shore that Babb went down. It was about three miles down river where Babb was drowned.

Mr. Gilbert of the Gauthier Undertaking Co. took care of the body. The funeral occurred at the Saint John Baptist church, Monday morning.

SAD ACCIDENT TO FORMER BETHEL BOY.

Friday afternoon occurred the funeral of Richard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Douglass, at his former home in Bethel. The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. C. Curtis and many friends gathered to pay the last and tribute of respect to one who in the prime of life was suddenly called away.

While awaiting to raise a safe to a second story window, the chains holding the safe at a distance of ten feet from the ground broke; the safe fell upon Mr. Douglass, crushing him to the ground. The deceased was for some time lived in Island Pond, Vt., where the accident occurred. He leaves a widow and three children, besides father, mother, brothers and sisters to mourn his loss. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved ones.

THE RUMFORD MARRIED MEN ARE WINNERS WITH THE FAIR SEX, BUT NOT AT THE BAT.

The married men and single men of Rumford came together in a base ball match on The Flats last Thursday afternoon, and although it was hot weather it was only as the Klondike to Panama, compared with the hotness of the game. The reports that were sent up from the ground while the game was in progress were somewhat confusing. The first report was that one James Sheen had fiddled the game for the married men. James Stevenson, who did not play, was one of the first from the grounds to reach the village. He reported that the married men won out. Later reports, and in

JUMPED 15 FEET TO GROUND, ESCAPED

in Night Clothes at 3 A. M. Sunday Last.

Sunday morning at about 2:30, of-ficer Roach was called upon by two rural appearing young fellows with the complaint that one of them, Arthur Wyshall of New Brunswick, who came to Rumford Saturday night, had been robbed of ten dollars. He told the officer that a woman and a man in room 10 at the Laundry building had sneaked him. The officer suspected the nature of the affair, and took the fellows with him, and found the parties in the room. The woman being dis-robed, the officer stood in the hallway to give her a chance to dress. In less than one minute he heard the window slam, and rushing into the room he saw that the two of them had jumped to the roof and to the ground fifteen feet below. He did not care to take the chance of jumping, and was aroused only to find that they had hid-den themselves.

There was another young man who had been pointed out to the officer as interested with them, in fact the one that had introduced the fellows to the man and woman in room ten. The officer went on his trail, and found where he had been to Morse and Ames' stable for a team, which was refused him.

The officer then went to Hall's stable and found that the fellow had begged a chance to go to bed in the hostler's bunk.

It was not thought that the woman could get away for she jumped out of the window scantily clad. The young man was brought into court Monday and the evidence brought out by County Attorney Parker, was to the effect that the young man's name was James Aken, claiming Water-town, Mass., as his home. He was 21 years old. Came to Rumford the 20th of July in company with the man and woman. Acknowledged that he knew the character of the woman, and it was later brought out that the man with her was the fellow's own brother.

It appeared that Wyshall and H. B. Lockies in the company of one Jack Smith, came along to the boarding house at about 10 o'clock Saturday night and Smith introduced them to young Aken, as the proprietor of the house.

They both testified that Aken took them to the room where the money was lost. Beale McCutcheon, the house keeper for the owners of the boarding house testified that the three, the man and woman giving the name of Atkins, hired two rooms, July 21st and that the woman hardly went out while they were occupants. Heard the trouble Sunday morning, and ordered the fellows out of the house, as she thought they were the cause of the disturbance. Had no previous knowledge of the business of the couple.

The young man was bound over to the Supreme Court. Officer Roach took him to Paris fall, Tuesday.

The man and woman who made their escape from the boarding house, were caught at Bryant Pond Tuesday, by Officer Roach.

fact by Stevenson's own admission, it turned out that the single men won the game. Capt. L. W. Blanchard made a home run for the married men. It was the great play of the game. The ball went to left field, and Walter Hanson was there to get it. He did not have a flying machine hence did not get the ball until Blanchard had got home with his score. It was a heavy leg, and he was most "all in" when he got in.

The married men started with W. H. Burgess in the box and Claude Fitzpatrick behind the bat. As soon as Wm. Thatcher and Cass Votter (real married men) showed up they were placed in these positions, and the game was played out attacked to that bat-tery.
Albert Thibodeau was the pitcher for the single men, and whether or not he distinguished himself the reporter did not learn, but it is assumed that he did, for his side won the game. There were so many conflicting reports that the exact score could not be as-ertained. Some said one, and others said another margin, and the totals varied. The prize that the game was played for, missed express connections, and did not arrive until the next day. It was not placed on exhibition in any of the store windows.

FIRST GIFT TO GOULD'S ACADEMY DORMITORY.

Further Generosity of Hon. L. E. Holden.

It was vastly to the credit of the citizens of Bethel that when a call was made for furniture for the new dormitory a cheerful response was given by young and old.

It warms the heart to see how willing are these friends of Old Gould's—and who is there in this community who does not rank himself as one—to give of their best in helping this new plan to succeed.

With beautiful generosity of spirit, however limited as to means, Bethel has thus far shown her appreciation of Mr. Holden's gift, when like a meteor of generous brilliancy, there came flying over the thousand miles between Cleveland and Bethel the first gift to the completed dormitory—its furniture. What must it be like to be able to manifest one's willingness in such a magnificent way?

Mr. Holden's largeness of generosity has nearly taken Bethel's breath away—and its citizens now stand ready to respond to the next emergency call which will come from this great and now perfect gift to this village.

Already the Columbian Club has vot-ed to place on the walls of the new parlor one good photograph and great pride in this building will unite all social clubs and make a great common interest for us all.

And now all are interested in ar-ranging for a fitting dedication of this building and a reception to Mr. Holden, which will in some way express the gratitude and enthusiasm that sur-rounds his name in Bethel.

Mr. E. M. Skinner and family of Dorchester, Mass., came Tuesday night for a visit with Mrs. Skinner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter French, who have been spending a week with Mrs. French's sister, Mrs. C. K. Fox, returned to their home in Portland, Saturday.

Mr. W. A. Cotton and Master Geo. of Lewiston, spent Sunday with Mr. Cotton's mother Mrs. S. H. Jodrey. Mr. Cotton returned home, but Master Geo. will remain a few weeks with his grandmother.

Mr. Harvey Philbrook of Greene had the misfortune to have his barn with several tons of hay in it struck by lightning and burned during the shower of last Friday.

Mr. Jack Carier spent last week at Capezio, the guest of the family of Mr. Geo. E. King. During his absence, Miss Barbara Carier assisted in the store of C. A. Lucas.

Miss Minnie Capen went to the Eye and Ear Infirmary last Friday and had her neck operated on for goitre, Saturday. All will be pleased to learn that she is doing nicely.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Farwell, whose little son Andrew died last Tuesday night of diphtheria. Mrs. Farwell is also ill of diphtheria and the family is quarantined.

Thursday, Aug. 12, the Ladies' Club will hold the annual mid-summer fair. The usual tables with dainty fancy work, aprons of all kinds, useful articles, and the candy table will be worth your inspection, besides other attractions. Ice cream and cake for sale, afternoon and evening. At six o'clock supper will be served at the usual price, 25 cents. All are invited to come in from 2 to 8 p. m. when the ladies will be pleased to serve customers or show their goods.

If you are in doubt about your place for an outing of a day or a week, or any length of time, why not try Broadview Inn? It is located between Look Mill and Bethel, two miles from the R. R. station at Locke Mills. The air is clear and invigorating; the table dainty and beautiful being supplied from the 150 acre farm connected with the hotel. The managers have had over twenty years' experience and know how to do things. See notice in another column.

OHIO WHEAT HOLDS ITS OWN.
John W. Burke, of Ohio, Says Farmers Should Increase Acreage.

It is interesting to note in view of the exploitation of the west and northwest as the great wheat country of America—that one of the finest flour made in the United States is an Ohio product from start to finish. And the one of the partners of the firm that makes it is a president of the Millers' Federation whose membership includes every prominent miller in the United States.

Mr. John W. Burke, of the firm of Ansted & Burke, making William Tell Flour, has an experience of 45 years. He knows the flour business down to the minutest detail, and personally inspects all the wheat that goes into his famous flour.

Mr. Burke says that the bread qualities of flour depend entirely on the wheat that goes into it, and that Ohio soil produces a wheat that hasn't a rival in the whole country.

Ohio Red Winter Wheat makes for the housekeeper plus her faith is forever after the first sack—and it is the only kind that goes into William Tell. It is too bad that Ohio can't raise enough wheat to let the entire country get a chance to try William Tell Flour.

But Mr. Burke doesn't find all Ohio Red Winter wheat up to his exacting standard. He says that Ansted & Burke are not trying to make the most flour, but the best flour—and if he can't get wheat that suits him, he will make less flour.

Ansted & Burke have one of the most up-to-date mills in the country. If every housekeeper could see her sack of William Tell flour made, she would enjoy it all the more. This is one of the industries that Ohioans should be proud of.

And they surely are. Mr. Burke says that they have never been able to keep up with the demand for William Tell.

It's up to the Ohio farmers to grow more Red Winter Wheat—and to see that it's the superlative quality that Mr. Burke demands.

City and Country.

The city rapidly uses men up; families run out, men become sophisticated and feeble. A fresh stream of country blood is always settling from the country into the city; a stream not so fresh flows back again into the country, a stream for the most part of blood and pale humanity. It is arterial blood when it comes back. A nation always begins to rot first in the great cities, is indeed perhaps always rotting there, and is saved only by the antiseptic virtues of fresh supplies of country blood—John Burroughs.

Where the Finest Flour is Made

"The bread-making qualities of flour are due entirely to the kind of wheat. Nature gives to wheat, and flour, all the strength they possess."

R. JAMES ADAMS, JR.,
"The American Baker."

WILLIAM TELL FLOUR is made from the finest specially selected OHIO Red Winter Wheat. President John W. Burck, who personally inspects the wheat offered for this famous flour, has an experience of 45 years at the business. Every shipment of grain must come up to the long established William Tell standard in every respect.

Ask any expert. He will tell you that the whitest-most delicious bread—the lightest biscuits, the kind that melt in your mouth—are made from the flour of this wheat. That's the only kind that goes into—

ENDED ALL SHOW OF DIGNITY

Mr. Newlywed's Extremely Modern Form of Introduction Broke the Ice at Once.

They had been married only two weeks and were going to spend the evening with friends. They were to meet friends of their friends there. It was expected that there would necessarily be a show of dignity when the bridegroom and the bride arrived. All of the company was there and sitting around looking its sweetest. A bride always makes dignity essential.

It happened that the bridegroom was the particular friend of the host. The latter never met the bride. She was coming into an entirely new circle. It was expected that when the Newlyweds arrived that Mr. Newlywed would stammer and blush when he introduced Mrs. Newlywed as his wife. Not so for this boy. He sauntered in preceded by the dignified bride. Everybody in the parlor bristled up. But it wasn't to be a brilliant affair at all. Mr. Newlywed simply swept around, caught the host by the arm and led him before the bride.

"Dave, meet the old lady," he said. Dignity exit. Everybody laughed and got acquainted in a hurry. The good-natured introduction of the host to the bride loosened up the strings of social stress. "The old lady" found herself among friends.

LIBERITY IN MORAL CODE.

Too Many of the Great Financiers of To-Day Are Believers in the Idea of the Brazilians.

Joseph Widener, a young Philadelphia millionaire, was entertaining a party of Anglo-Americans at luncheon at the Ritz, in London.

The day was mild and sunny, and the French windows of the beautiful restaurant stood open on the green park and Piccadilly. A limousine glided swiftly past. Devonshire's house, a well-known American millionaire sat in the sumptuous car, and Mr. Widener, nodding toward the man, said to his neighbor:

"That is Boyana. He made 19 millions last year."

"Is he honest?" the neighbor, an Englishman, inquired. Mr. Widener laughed.

"Well, Lord John," he replied, "Bona's moral code resembles that of the Brazilians. It—er—is liberal. It countenances many shabby things."

"In Brazil, you know, in introducing a friend to your banker, in recommending him to a business associate and so forth, you show the highest confidence in him—a confidence that can go no further—when you say:

"This is my friend. For all he steals I will be responsible!"

Had to Use Long Hand.
"To take down dozens of letters in long hand is a queer experience for an expert stenographer," said the New York young man with a pencil and note book. "But that was what I did when I held a hospital position. The letters were written for the charity patients. My work was supposed to be confined to the superintendent's office, but when a man too ill to write his own letters expressed a wish for an amanuensis I was put on the job owing to my facility for picking up and transcribing languages. Almost a third of the letters I wrote in the wards were taken down in long hand. Many of the patients of Polish and Russian birth had a dread of short-hand. As soon as they saw I was dealing in mysterious dots and dashes they got scared. They felt sure that I could not report them properly by means of signs and they began toidget, so in order to pacify them I wrote out the message in long hand right under their eyes."

Rats Killed the Snake.
Two big gray rats fought a battle with a rattlesnake the other day and the rats won. The snake was purchased by a grocery firm in Dalton, Ga., for a window display and two big rats were obtained as food for the snake. When the rats were placed in the cage with the snake it made no effort to molest them. A crowd gathered to witness the snake eat the rats, but it was over an hour before the rattler moved to attack. The rats showed fight from the start. While the snake was after one the other would be plunging its teeth into the snake's body. After an hour the snake succumbed. One rat was nearly dead, while the other apparently was unharmed. As a tribute to its valor, the unharmed rat was released. The rattler measured seven feet in length.

Shows Value of Advertising.
Some idea of the enormous sums spent annually for advertising purposes along Broadway may be gained from the statement that a certain firm has offered $10,000 a year for the exclusive use of a tall illuminated tower overlooking Times Square. This is by no means a record figure, however, in a district where blank wall space capable of bearing an ordinary painted sign rents for $100 a month or more.

Had a Fellow Feeling.
A little boy had lived for some time with a very penniless uncle, who was one day walking out with the child at his side. When a friend accosted him, accompanied by a very ragged man, the little fellow, never having seen a dog of so slim and slight a texture, clasped the creature round the neck, with the impetuous cry:

"Oh, doggie, doggie, and did ye live wi' your uncle too, that ye are so thin?"

Correct Guess.
Bobby—Mr. Updyke, what do you suppose Clara said about you just before you came in?

Mr. Updyke—I haven't an idea in the world, Bobby.

Bobby—Well you've guessed it! That's just what she did say!

Luck on the Stage.
Stock exchange men and racing men regard luck as a side issue. They follow it secretly and make excuses for it if it goes astray, as if it were a personal friend; but the actor has a deep reverence for it, and superstitious customs that sprang into observance during the restoration period are still maintained in the age of socialism and problem plays. It is almost pathetic to see the joy that beams in the faces of the theatrical company at rehearsals if a harmless, necessary cat stroll on the stage; but if the cat sits down and appears to watch the proceedings with approval the joy becomes ecstatic.

Nurse for a Hotel.
At one of the hotels in New York a nurse has been installed whose duty it is to take care of the children of guests who come without nurses. The proprietor says that very often a woman is obliged to come without a nurse and in consequence is lied down by the baby and, moreover, obliged to consult a strange physician if it is ill. The nurse takes care of all that and her services are not charged for.

THE HOME CIRCLE.

Pleasant Reveries—A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers
as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

Editor's Note—It is our desire to make this department one of the most interesting and valuable features of the whole paper. To this end we ask the assistance of our readers. Choice verse and good of thought will be gladly received. Here are overtures for anything that our friends have sent or may send.

A Woman's Problem.
When the breakfast things are cleared away,
The same old problem's rising,
For she again sits down to think
Of something appetizing.
The dinner she must soon prepare,
Or give the cook directions,
And great is the relief she feels
When she has made selections.

When dinner things are cleared away
The problem that is upper
In just the same, with one word changed—
"What can I get for supper?"
She wants to give them something new,
And long in meditation
Till choice is made, and then begins
The work of preparation.

When supper things are cleared away
Again her mind is worried,
For then she thinks of breakfast time,
When meals are often hurried,
The question is decided,
Then battles 'round till she makes sure
That everything's provided.

Three times each day, week in, week
out,
This problem she is meeting,
And often she is sore perplexed
In making plans for eating.
For one likes this and one likes that,
And what is appetizing
To some is by others spurned
As food that they're despising.

That "woman's work is never done"
Has often been disputed,
But that she's worried is a fact,
And cannot be refuted.
The worry over what to eat
Is greatest of all questions,
And glad she'd be if some else
Would make the meal suggestions.

Train your eyes to rest on the brightest spots in life. Pass the darkness on the other side. One of the greatest places on earth is the spot made sacred by the hallowed influences of those we love in our own homes.

The time to have the brightest camp in the hottest summer ready, to wear the gayest dresses and bust up
the festive spirit in one's territory,
in the cold, rainy night, when there will not be any company, but when the homecoming husband, sons, or brothers will doubly enjoy the cheer.

The father who is "chummy" with his boy, gets down to that eager, inquiring, restless little soul and explains and encourages, does not consider a harsh word in order to maintain discipline, and the mother who sympathizes, caresses and plays with her children can keep her discipline
on her feet and her hair brush on the dressing table. Children need love and sympathy as much as flowers
need air and sunshine.

the best welfare of the child they pursued in infancy, and watched and guarded tenderly through childhood's wayward years; and so as the years pass by their eyes are still directed to the object of their affection, with the hope and prayer that he may be spared trouble and disgrace, and that prosperity and happiness may be his portion in life. This is the living wish;
but the flesh is weak; the world has snares and allurements, and too often
in his ambition for his brilliant boy,
the father forgets the wisdom the years should have taught in him, and withholds much needed advice from the beloved one, and even helps him into entanglements and debt that will sooner or later be his ruin. If we could only get away from unholo ambition, "by that sin fall the angels,"
and not only advise better things, but act as though we believed them, many a son would be kept in the "straight and narrow way," and be found travelling that slow and sure road that leads to honor and preferment among good people. Were it not for this ambition for our children, and indiscreet trust in their abilities, many a parent would be saved from pinching poverty and broken heart in old age because some son has swept away his property and become a discredited
and untrustworthy man.

Girls, listen to your mothers; they are your wisest teachers, your best counselors. Even though you have received a college education, and the dear one who in all probability has never gone beyond the third reader,
you can rest assured that it is not book learning that will keep your feet away from many pitfalls that she can warn you from in tender, loving fashion that you will do well to heed.
The girl that feels herself superior to her mother in education, and who shows to the world at large her superiority for a lack that only her superior for good fortune prevented her from possessing is a figure that we are happy to say is not met with often;
yet it does exist, and whenever we see a self-complacent young woman openly correcting her mother we feel like giving her a good shaking, and telling her that the plain-spoken, ungrammatical and possibly confused woman,
who has never had her advantages, is in reality wiser than she will ever be, and that to impress outsiders
a little more consideration is necessary. No matter how your mothers may speak, their hearts are in the right place; if their advice is old fashioned and their counsel not up to the level of the twentieth century standard, they have had experience of more years than all the schooling and extra accomplishments that you may think of achieving excellence. Heed your mother—you will never regret it.

All Those Mean Whispers.
The very secret of the whisperers are those who gather up all the banal things that have been said about you and bring them to you—all the things
said against you or against your family, or against your style of business.
They gather them all up and bring them to you in the very worst shape;
they bring them to you without any of the extenuating circumstances, and after they have made your feelings all raw, very raw, they take this bribe,
this temptation, this aqua fortis, and
rub it in with a coarse towel, and rub
it in until it stings to the bone. They make you the pit of vipers in which they thrust all the sharp things they have ever heard about you. "Now don't bring me any more of that,"
"Now don't tell anybody I told you. Let it be between you and me. Don't involve me in it at all." They aggravate you to the point of profanity and then they wonder why you cannot sing psalm tunes! They turn you on a spit before a hot fire and wonder why you are not ascribed to gratitude to them.
Pettiness of neighbors! Pettiness of family! Pettiness of friends! Pettiness of strangers! Sometimes they get you in a corner where you cannot very well resist without being rude, and then they tell you all about the case, and all about the other case, and they talk, talk, talk. After a while they go away, leaving the place looking like a barren field after the frost and winds have been around, and a wing and tail and a head and an eye, and there is a deep, dark, dark, dark, dark.

The Discipline of Children.
About the worst thing parents can do is to discuss the fallings of children before them. The next worst thing is for one parent to attempt to punish the child and the other parent protect against it. Either action will damage the respect of the child for one of the other of its parents, and if there is one thing more than another that parents want to preserve, it is their dignity before their children. A child who gets the idea that one parent is at variance with the other as the question of discipline will make both unhappy and render itself de-solutely disobedient by playing off
one parent against the other. If you want to have harmony in the family, get together on the question of disciplining the children—at least in their presence; and if you want to control by methods, do it in the privacy of your own apartments, where you can have it out without covering yourself in the eyes of the children.

It may be thought that when the child has grown to manhood or womanhood, as the case may be, that the parents' duty ceases, and that henceforth to say "good-bye and good-evening" and no longer worry their children about discipline is to be as wise as a parent. No right minded father or mother can ever come to be convinced of this and continue for

THE UP-TO-DATE CONSCIENCE

Lamentable Incident That Drove "Still, Small Voice" to the Use of the Telephone.

The moral of this story may be that it is better to heed the warnings of the "still small voice" before it is driven to the use of the telephone.

A New York lawyer, going jolly out of his window, saw a light in an office across the street that made him
rub his eyes and look again. Yes, there was no doubt about it. The pretty stenographer was sitting upon the telephone book. The lawyer noticed the name that was lettered on the window and then searched the telephone book. Still keeping his eyes upon the scene across the street,
he called the gentleman up. In a few moments he saw him start violently,
and take down the receiver.

NAME THAT CAUSES A SMILE

New Yorker Would Seem to Have Real Cause of Grievance Against His Parents.

"There goes a man who would be justified in changing his name," said
the city salesman. "His name is really Doe, and John in the bargain."
John Doe. Moreover, he has a sister Jane. I wonder what kind of joke their parents were trying to perpetrate on those helpless mortals? Doe as a surname was bad enough, without adding to the offense by tackling
on John and Jane. When I first met John Doe I did not take his name seriously. I thought the man who introduced us was enjoying a little pleas-antry at my expense, or maybe at the expense of John Doe. I smiled. John Doe did not smile. I wondered just why he didn't.

"You don't believe it," he said, "but unfortunately it is true. I am the famous Doe."

"Later I met his sister Jane and the rest of that particular Doe family.
They assured me that there are a number of Does in town. I presume there are, but I hope that in most cases the old folks had sense enough not to christen their offspring John and Jane."—New York Times.

Antidote for Suicide.
They tell of an Atchison girl who thought her heart was broken. She was so convinced of it that she began reading up on deadly poisons and cried softly to herself upon the thoughts of an early death. At this juncture a friend sent her a box of chocolates. She ate one, life looked a little brighter. She ate another;
why not put out that death till next week? She ate a third, and forgot she ever had a trouble. All of which is proof of the claim of an Atchison physician that when people are morbid and unhappy the most effective cure is something to eat. No one, he says, can long for death while engaged in chewing something palatable. The man who talks suicide needs a beef-steak instead of advice.—Atchison Globe.

His Depression.
He was handsome, young, talented,
he had apparently everything one could wish for as a start in life, but every time he came into a room where there were mirrors he absorbed himself in contemplation of the back of his head.

"That spot is getting thinner and thinner," he complained when he called on the woman and sat down
after looking at it in all the mirrors
in her flat. "Don't make any difference what I do with it, it keeps on getting larger. I've tried everything, rubbing it with kerosene, with hair tonics. Can't do a thing with it."
"It's just as well," she consoled him,
"if you didn't have that little bald spot
to keep you humiliated there'd be no associating with you."

Tale of a Shirt.
According to a Columbus (Ga.) reporter the body of Brady Grooms, a young man who was drowned in the Chattahoochee river, recently, was recovered in a remarkable manner.
After searching in vain for hours, the father of the young man was advised to toss into the river one of his son's shirts and that it would sink immediately over the spot where the body
lay. This was tried. The shirt drifted down the river near the bank then suddenly floated to the middle of the stream and sank. Grooms' body was found with the shirt clinging to his legs.

A Bad Habit.
"Some barbers have a habit of asking a customer if he doesn't shave himself."
"What of it?"
"It ain't no business getting."
"Think not?"
"I do. Would you patronize a barber who insinuated in a supercilious manner that you sometimes made your own clothes?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HANGING FRAME FOR PHOTOS

Or, if Desired, Article May Be Made
With Support to Enable it to Stand on Table.

We give a sketch of a particularly pretty design for a hanging photograph frame, and one that may be easily carried out by the amateur. A square piece of stout cardboard must be obtained of the proportions indicated by the dotted lines, and on this should be sketched the shape of the frame, care being taken to make the sides exactly equal to each other.
The oval in the center must also be cut away, or if preferred, a circular or square space may be arranged for the portrait.

The front of the board is then thinly padded with cotton wool, and covered with silk or brocade, fastened on at the back with seecotine or strong glue and left to dry. A square of glass can be placed in front of the photograph, and the two fastened in their places by means of a piece of paper pasted across the back.

A loop of ribbon with a rosette at the top is attached to the back of the frame by which it may be suspended
from the wall or a little cardboard support may be fixed to the back and glued in its place with a strip of cloth,
and the frame made to stand upon the table. It is sometimes a pretty idea, especially when a frame of this kind is intended as a present, to embroider an initial on the lower portion of the frame.

How It Originated.
The poet sat and scratched his head,
And pondered awful hard;
"Oh, it is sure," he said,
"To have to be a bard!"

His watch was soaked, his feet were dye, he had to eat that night;
His heart was sore, and he was blue—
And yet he had to write.

He had to write or write the verse
Of woe, and hunger's sting;
And so he poured the well-known verse—
"Write nothing when you sing!"

THE FIGHTING LAWMAKERS.

The people tire of long debates,
In which each side its reason states,
The public just impatient waits
For speeches to be done.
But if they start to fight it out,
And argue in a hectic bout,
The nation will sit up and shout:
"Take notice! Here's a real fun!"

If tariff talk escapes the schools
Of oratory, which dully drools,
And Marquis of Queensbury rules
Adopt to shape its line,
With uppercuts both fast and free,
And Cannon as the referee,
How interesting it will be—
How strong men then will shiver!

A Baited Gold Mine.
Senator Bailey was discussing the flat fight that two Washington writers fought in their rivalry over which should have the honor of serving him.
"Oh, well, I don't blame those boys,"
said Senator Bailey. "They showed the proper spirit—the spirit which we must be striving for. They weren't like Vincent Cresley of Copia county, and whenever I go back they shall be my warriors in alternation."

"Vincent Cresley celebrated his Master Monday by going, for the first time in his life, to a horse race. He was a feeble-minded fool and his copanions easily persuaded him to stake in the third race $1 on a 50-to-1 shot.
"The horse won.
"When the bookmaker gave Vincent his winnings the silly fellow couldn't believe his eyes.
"Do you mean to tell me," he said
"that I get all this for my one dollar?"
"That's what you do," said the bookmaker.

"Vincent's look was like Sinbad's
in the Valley of Diamonds.
"By ginger!" he muttered, "and I never knewed it! Say, how long has this thing been going on?"

Some of Turkey's Wealth.
No one has ever attempted to place
a value on the contents of the Osman treasury, which it is stated the Young Turks propose to turn into cash for national needs. Its worth is money is unthinkable, for the said
gold throne is studded with 10,000
pearls as big as filberts, while there are rows of bowls filled with uncut
gems, and amazing ancient armor set with rubies, emeralds and diamonds.
Among all this wealth there are also such trifles as some of the most exquisite Sevres china in the world, presented by Louis XIV. to Sultan Metapha.

"That's Good."
"My husband has always been so
to encourage those who work for him," remarked Mrs. Pike to her sister.
"You mean he is always ready to give praise where praise is due?"
"Yes, indeed. When one of the men does good work he is quick to say so. Night after night, after he has been late at the office, I hear him murmuring in his sleep: "That's good! That's good!" And he always reluctantly confesses that he is dreaming about the good work the men are doing at the office. Oh, is so glad!"

Circumstantial Evidence.
"Did you say Jagers was a member of the stock exchange?"
"Yes."
"Bull or bear?"
"Bear, I guess; at least, that's the distinction his home bearing seems to enforce."

Draw Your Own Conclusions.
In an English school the children were asked to come prepared with the meaning of the word "bachelor" in the next lesson.
This was one little girl's confused definition: "A bachelor is a real happy man."
The teacher wanted to know how it did the child know that?
"Father told me so!"

True Sympathy.
"You say the dog bite you?"
"Yes, your honor."
"Can you show the scar?"
"No, but I can show the dent. He bit me in the wooden leg."
"The dog is discharged. His charge and disappointment must be considered a sufficient punishment. Not case."

They Got Together.
"Use headwork," urged the manager of the department store.
"Yes, sir," said the salesman.
"For instance, if a lady buys two lawns it ought to be easy to sell her some more."

TO KEEP IN MEMORY MEATS FOR DINNER

SMALL HOUSEHOLD MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE.

Effective Method of Washing Thin Glasses—Mat for the Umbrella Jar—Short Curtain Is Growing in Popularity.

Washing Thin Glasses.—One often will find that thin glasses are difficult to wash and leave clear and unclouded. Wash them in hot water and pure white soap and rinse them immediately in water of the same temperature and set them aside to drain. Do not wipe them until they are nearly dry and then polish with a clean towel. Clean tissue paper is excellent for polishing glasses. They are more apt to break if you dry them while they are wet and they are also more inclined to be cloudy.

Mat for Umbrella Jar.—If you dread your umbrella jar will be broken from careless handling, try putting a rubber mat in the bottom. One housewife has inside of hers a circle of rubber tubing, on top of which is a flat tin plate with slightly upturned edge. The tubing keeps this from resting on the bottom and it can easily be emptied of drippings.

Popular Short Curtains.—The short sash curtain grows more popular for the private residence, although it was first used in physicians' offices.

The original idea of heavy linen or crash still obtains; for the very usefulness of this little screen depends upon its weight.

It is only 20 inches long, and folded on to a brass rod placed against the lowest part of the sash.

The richer or more delicate quality of the inside drapery has made no difference in the outer curtain, whose sole excuse is its opaque quality.

To Mend Broken Crockery.—When a plate or dish is broken, bind pieces together with strips of soft cloth, cover with skimmed milk and boil four hours. This will make good as new and it can be used in hot or cold water ever after.

The Kitchen Waste Basket.—Though the average housekeeper apparently isn't aware of the fact that a waste basket in the kitchen is a useful thing, the fact remains that it is.

Try one under your kitchen table, in which to throw all wrappings from parcels and other odds and ends that cannot be placed in the garbage or in the ash pail. It is also a good idea to hang a small bag over the kitchen table and use it as a receptacle for odds and ends of string and cord.

Alcohol Better Than Soda.—Do not wash the windows with soap-suds. A little alcohol rubbed on quickly will leave the panes bright and shining if they are wiped dry. Ammonia is equally good if put in the wash water or rubbed on with chamois.

Sponge Cake—Cheap, Delicious.

The following recipe for a light, soft sponge cake with but four eggs was passed along the line by a capital New England house-mother. As it differs slightly in proportions from any other sponge cake recipe that have appeared in print, and gives exceptional satisfaction, it is worth "making a note on." Any amateur can use it with success: One cup sugar beaten with four egg yolks and three tablespoons of cold water, one cup flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder (sifted), four whites of eggs beaten stiff, juice of half a lemon or any flavoring preferred. Have a pan of water under the cake in the oven. Bake ten minutes in hot oven, then reduce the heat one-half and bake 45 minutes longer. Don't open the oven door until the cake is done by the clock. It cannot burn, owing to the water in water in the pan.

Oriental Tea Cakes.

Break white of one egg in a bowl, add one tablespoonful of sugar, stir a moment and then add one tablespoonful of flour and one-half teaspoonful of softened butter; beat to the thickness of cream. Pour a teaspoonful of batter on the reverse side of a large baking pan, slightly greased, and with back of spoon spread it until it is about four inches in diameter and almost as thin as tissue paper. Bake in a moderate oven until brown at while still warm roll around a curling stick.

Frozen Ginger Pudding.

Makes a rich smooth custard from one quart milk, five eggs, three heaping tablespoonsful of sugar. Add when quite cold one quart of sweetened whipped cream, a few drops of vanilla and one scant pint of preserved ginger syrup. Turn into a chilled freezer and when half frozen pour in half pound of crushed macaroon crumbs that have been soaked in sherry, one and a half cups of chopped preserved ginger, a little candied orange peel and freeze till firm and creamy.

Broth for Invalids.

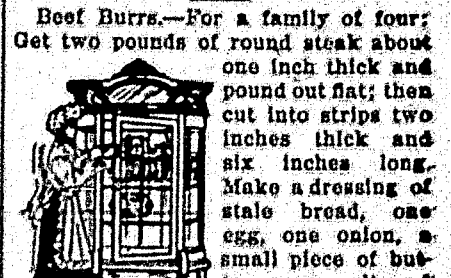

Cut in small pieces one pound of beef or mutton, or a part of both, as preferred. Boil it gently in two quarts of water; take off scum and when reduced to a pint strain it. Season with a little salt and take a teaspoonful at a time.

Breakfast Bacon.

Slice the bacon very thin. Cut the rind and hard parts before slicing. Put a shallow pan with cold sweet potatoes with the bacon and bake until the pork is crisp.

BEST METHODS OF PREPARATION AND SERVING.

New and Old Recipes Mingled—Beef Burrs a Change from the Ordinary Ways of Cooking Steak—Salad for Lamb.

Beef Burrs.—For a family of four: Get two pounds of round steak about one inch thick and pound out flat; then cut into strips two inches thick and six inches long. Make a dressing of stale bread, one egg, one onion, a small piece of butter, sage, salt and pepper to taste. Spread this dressing on strips of meat, roll up and pin each of the burrs with toothpicks so as to hold them together firmly so they will look like little roasts. Put butter and lard in a kettle and brown nicely on both sides, then add water enough to cover. Simmer for one hour and a half. Enough dressing will boil out to make a nice brown gravy.

Salad with Lamb.—One of the most epicurean salads to serve with roast lamb is the pulp of oranges sprinkled with chopped mint leaves and flavored with lemon juice and sugar. This is put on small lettuce leaves.

Stewed Sweetbreads.—Parboil and carefully remove the skin without breaking the sweetbreads. Put them in a stewing pan with two ounces of butter, a tablespoonful of chopped onion, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one clove, a bay leaf, a tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, a half teaspoonful salt and half a pint of white stock. Stand the pan on a moderate fire and simmer for 30 minutes. Dish the sweetbreads. Wash a pint of French peas in cold water, add them to the sauce, let the whole come to a boil, skim the fat from the surface and pour the sauce and peas around the sweetbreads.

Pork Roast.—Select a nice lean pork roast, wash and put in roasting pan; salt and add water, then place about a dozen whole cloves on the roast and roast until tender. This gives the roast a delicious flavor.

Brussels Steak.—Cut four onions in thin rings; soak half an hour in cold water; drain between towels and fry quickly in deep hot fat. Pour them over hot broiled steak.

Stuffed Corn Beef.—Take a piece of well-corned rump or round, about six or seven pounds; make several deep cuts in it all cuts with stuffing of bread crumbs, soaked, squeezed quite dry, butter, good pinch of cloves, allspice, pepper, a little finely chopped onion and a little thyme. Then tie up tightly in a cloth and saturate it with vinegar. Boil about three hours.

Orange Cookies.

Nearly everyone who tastes these for the first time begs for the recipe. Required: Four ounces of corn flour, two ounces of butter, two ounces of brown sugar, two eggs, the grated rind of two oranges, the juice of half an orange.

Sieve the corn flour. Mix the sugar with the grated orange rind. Beat the butter and sugar to a soft cream. Whisk the eggs until frothy, then stir them slowly into the butter and sugar, and beat the mixture well. Add the corn flour very lightly, and beat the strained orange juice.

Grease some small patty or fancy tins, and fill them half full with the mixture. Bake the cakes very carefully in a moderate oven for about 15 minutes, or until set and delicately colored.

Allow the cookies to cool a little before lifting them out of the tins, as they break easily.

Toby Pudding.

Required: Stale bread, one pint of lemon or any other kind of jelly. Cut the bread into neat, small dice. Fill a mold or basin rather than a quarter full of the dice, pour over the hot jelly, and leave it until set. Dip the mold into warm water and turn the jelly out.

Lemon Jelly is usually the nicest and most of the other varieties are improved by the addition of a squeeze of lemon juice.

Some people, instead of using the full quantity of water directed on the packets, use half milk and half water, but I think a still nicer plan is to use all water, and serve a little well-whipped cream with the jelly.

When Ironing Sleeves.

To successfully iron the present long sleeves on shirt waists, you must slip your left hand into the sleeve to the point, spreading the fingers to flatten out sleeve; begin by ironing the point, then turn hand over (the sleeve with it), and iron other side, gradually working upward by ironing first on one side then on other, keeping your fingers spread, and pulling your hand back as you proceed. You will have a nicely ironed sleeve, tucks and insertions notwithstanding.

Oatmeal Macaroons.

Two and one-half cups rolled oats, two teaspoons baking powder, one cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, two eggs, one teaspoon vanilla. Drop by teaspoon on buttered tins and shape a little. Bake ten or fifteen minutes. Take off tins before they get brittle.

Green Peppers as Salad Holders.

A nice way to put salads in a lunch box is to use green sweet peppers. Remove the seeds after cutting off the small end of each pepper and stuff them with the salad.

PICKLES THAT WON'T SHRINK

Cucumbers Put Up in This Way Will Be Found Excellent When Brought Out for Table.

Wash cucumbers, clean and place them in a stone jar, then cover with a brine made of one pint of salt to six quarts water. The water should be boiling hot. Place grape leaves on top, weight down and let stand until morning. Pour the brine off, rinse, then place alternate layers of grape leaves and cucumbers in the pickling bottle. Pour over them alum water made of one teaspoonful of powdered alum in cold water. Allow it to cover cucumbers and come to scalding point. Let the whole stand, closely covered, on the back of the stove for two hours, then drain and place on very cold or ice water. Pour this water off, wipe cucumbers dry and place in a jar a layer of pickles and one of salt, until all are in. Allow about one pint of salt to each 100 medium-sized pickles. Pour boiling water over and cover with grape leaves. Heat this brine every morning for nine mornings, then heat slowly in warm, weak vinegar, wipe cucumbers dry and place in glass jars. Pour over hot spiced vinegar and seal at once.

The vinegar to be prepared as follows: To each quart of vinegar (not too strong) allow two teaspoonfuls each of cinnamon and cloves, one teaspoonful each of mace, celery seed, a few thin slices of horseradish, one ounce mustard seed, one saltspoon of black pepper, a pinch of salt, red pepper, and one cupful of sugar. Put spices in a thin muslin bag, bring vinegar to boiling point and let boil for 15 minutes. Then pour over pickles.

The Home.

Wring a cloth from vinegar and wrap it several thicknesses around cheese to keep it from molding or drying.

A perfume bag to keep moths away is made as follows: One-half ounce each of cloves, nutmeg, caraway seeds.

Add a teaspoonful of sugar of lead to the water in which fine silk hosiery is washed, to prevent the delicate color from fading.

Wipe off screens with a duster each morning and beat with a soft brush. The beating should be done lightly, or the wire may be bulged.

Cold water, a teaspoonful of ammonia and soap will remove machine grease when other means would not answer, on account of colors running.

To wash water bottles or any vase having a long neck, fill with clear, hot water and they bite of torn paper

Shake well and rinse in cold water.

A small piece of window glass will be useful for holding the leaves apart on a cook book and one can read the recipe and not soil the book by too much handling.

Emery powder and oil made into a paste is an excellent mixture to clean steel. Rub on well and polish, after which rub with an oiled rag, and then polish up again with a clean duster.

Cream Puffs.

When a large number of puffs are to be made, this recipe recommended by one who has run a home bakery: Put half a cup of butter into two cups of boiling water and set over the fire. When it boils stir in, all at once, three cups of sifted flour, stir rapidly and until it becomes a smooth mass that cleaves from the pan. Take from the fire and add ten eggs, one at a time and unbeaten. Beat each egg thoroughly. Then put the batter in small spoonfuls on a greased pan with considerable space between, or put through a pastry oven about 30 minutes if very small, or as long as 40 minutes if large. Be sure that runs are quite done before taking from oven. When cold cut a gash in the side, put in a cream filling and put white or chocolate icing on the tops.

Pasta in Pastry.

Take three-fourths cup of flour, a teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a cup of milk, one well-beaten egg and a teaspoonful of olive oil. Whip the batter with an egg beater until perfectly smooth, dip in the hot rosette iron and fry in deep hot fat. Have the peas well cooked and drain them, then season with salt, pepper and butter. Do not fill the pastry rosettes until ready to serve. Serve with olives and squares of sharp cheese.

Nuts a Good Meat Substitute.

Nuts are nutritious and if eaten at proper times prove a good substitute for meat.

At this season, however, they are not generally of good quality, and should only be served salted, or in cooked dishes. Olive oil, cream and butter are all nourishing and should be indulged in freely.

Macaroni, spaghetti and the various noodles are not only healthy but easily digested by the weakest stomach.

Butter in Hot Weather.

To keep butter hard invert a large crock of earthenware in a flower pot will do about the size of the dish containing the butter. The porousness of the earthenware will keep the butter cool and all the more if the pot be wrapped in a wet cloth with a little water in the dish with the butter. I have always had lots of trouble to keep butter in the summer, but since using this I have my butter looking fine—not at all greasy.

TYPICAL OF NEW YORK LIFE.

Idea for Picture Postal Cards That Would Show Outsiders Just What Is the "Real Thing."

"I have a new idea for a picture postal card," said the tired-looking man. "I'd make it to represent the interior of an uptown flat. There ought to be millions of them on the market. They would sell. Every day people living here are asked by out-of-town acquaintances to send them postals descriptive of New York life. There are hundreds of such cards for sale, but none of them gets right down to the very marrow of metropolitan conditions. It takes a flat to do that.

"Even persons who are perfectly familiar with the scenes represented on picture postcards complain that they cannot recognize the places. But just transfer to a postal card a drawing of a New York flat, and there will be no mistake made as to the environment. Chuck, a lot of handboxes under the folding lounge, jam the baby's crib bang up against the buffet, hang a lot of clothes in every corner and on the walls for drapery, stack up a lot of illustrated books on the refrigerator, and pile the piano high with a bohemian luncheon outfit and other miscellany, and there you are. Friends and acquaintances all the way from Jersey City to Timbuctoo will exclaim at once: 'That's New York, all right!'" —New York Times.

NO MORE USE FOR ANTHONY

Saint Had Disregarded Small Girl's Appeal and Her Faith in Him Had Vanished.

There is one small girl in a New York school who has lost her faith in the saints—a faith that was implicit, says the New York Tribune. Her name is Elizabeth, and she can't learn to spell. She is always at the foot of the spelling class. She does her best to learn, but if a wrong letter can creep into a word it sneaks in when Elizabeth tries to spell that word. Tuesday she came into the class beaming, but inside of two minutes she had spelled innocent "in-ocent" and few "fough." The teacher shook her head.

"Elizabeth, what shall I do with you?" she asked. Elizabeth looked at her with a hopeless gaze, two tears trickling down her nose.

"There isn't anything to do," she said in a tone of finality. "I did the last thing this morning. I offered St. Anthony to see if he'd help me spell right, and he hasn't done it, and I've no more use for him."

Monetary Too Much for Tramps.

The sheriff of Burlington county, New Jersey, has adopted a novel method of ridding his county of tramps, and, incidentally, saving a good sum of money for the taxpayers. He has kept was the money employed.

For a long time the Burlington county jail was a favorite haven for members of the "hobo" tribe, until the sheriff began the bean soup treatment. He gave it to them at every meal, with the result that the tramps, who began to see beans and talk about them in their sleep, begged for a change in the menu. The sheriff was obdurate, however, and the result is that Burlington county has been stricken from the itinerary of all members of the "looking for work and hope I won't find it" class.

Gratitude.

Kindness never gets any thanks. I remember a man whose pal broke his leg while they were working together unloading a barge; and he went off to break the news to his pal's wife. A kind-hearted man's was as ever you see, and knowing how she would take on when she heard the news, he told her first of all that her husband was killed. She took on like a mad thing, and at last, when she couldn't do anything more and had quieted down a bit, he told her that it was only a case of a broken leg, thinking that her joy would be so great that she wouldn't think anything of that. He had to tell her three times before she understood him, and then, instead of being thankful to him for his thoughtfulness, she chased him 'art over to Wapping with a shopper, screaming with temper. —W. W. Jacobs in the Strand Magazine.

More Punishment.

Mrs. Stubbs (reading)—Yes, John, I states here that Abdul Hamid was killed with 12 wives.

Mr. Stubbs—With 12 wives? Poor old chap! They are determined that he shall not have any peace anywhere he goes.

Less Expensive.

"Home," remarked the newly married man, "is the dearest place on earth."

"Then why don't you give up house-keeping and board?" rejoined the bachelor.

Unfortunate Accident.

First Sailor—Did you ever have a bad accident in the fog?

Second Sailor—Well, I should say so! Once I ran into a fellow I owed five dollars to, in a fog! —Yonkers Statesman.

More Up-to-Date.

"Halt!" cried the handsome hero in the heavy melodrama. "There is a plot on foot!"

"What is it doing on foot?" shouted a lad in the gallery. "Why don't it come in an automobile?"

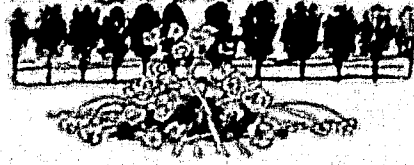

Her Viewpoint.

His Wife—Oh, I suppose a man's judgment is fairly good at times, but—

Her Husband—But what?

His Wife—A woman's instinct is always better.

HORTICULTURE

BIG LAMBERT SWEET CHERRY

Large Size and Fine Color of This Fruit Grown in Oregon Attracts Attention of Growers.

The large size and fine color of the sweet cherries grown in the Willamette and Columbia river valleys in Oregon have for many years attracted the attention of cherry growers and users to those sections, which seem peculiarly adapted to the production of this fruit. Fortunately for the reputation of the Willamette valley, the earliest introduction of cherries there (in 1848 by Henderson Lowelling, at Milwaukie, Ore.) appears to have included some of the choicest varieties, so that the planters of that district were not compelled to go through the long and trying experience with seedlings of indifferent quality that is common in newly settled regions. At the same time some very promising seedlings from those older sorts have in recent years come to light, some of which, such as Republican, Bing, and Hoskins, have attained considerable commercial importance.

One of the most promising of these new sorts is the Lambert. This variety appears to have originated as a seedling under a Napoleon (syn. Royal Ann) tree in the orchard now owned by Mr. J. H. Lambert, at Milwaukie, Ore., which was planted by the late Henderson Lowelling during and shortly after 1848. This seedling tree, which is supposed to have been a cross of Black Heart on Napoleon, was grafted to May Duke before it reached bearing age and transplanted to a location at one end of the old orchard. About 1880 the May Duke top was broken off or died, and a sprout from the seedling stock was permitted to form a new top to the tree. When it came into bearing its fruit attracted Mr. Lambert's attention, and shortly after 1890 small shipments of it sent to Boston and other eastern markets sold at much higher prices than other varieties shipped at the same time.

The Lambert Cherry.

So far as known, it has not been extensively planted east of the Rocky mountains, but it is considered worthy of testing wherever sweet cherries thrive.

IF YOU WISH FLOWERS.

Work every day to keep the plants comfortable. They are like children—don't let them get lousy if you love them.

All non-bloomers should be stored in the cellar or other suitable place in order to give room to the flowering and foliage plants.

Evaporation takes place slowly from the cans and glazed pots, and these may be used with advantage in the hot, dry air of the living room.

At least object to lime water in any form or quantity. Try some other insecticide for ridding the soil of worms for this plant.

Look at the stored roots and bulbs. If there is any sign of decay remove the rotten spot and cover thickly with powdered charcoal.

Give plenty of sunshine these days. Curtains do not belong to windows where plants are kept. Roll up the shades; wash the glass.

At night draw the shades down between the plants and the window glass. On very cold nights wrap a blanket of papers around the plants.

Shower, spray, dip, wash, scrub. Do any and all these things to keep down the insect enemies. Don't let bugs pasture on your plants.

Growing Strawberries. There are three common methods of growing strawberries—in hills, in narrow matted rows or in wide matted rows. We prefer the second method.

Arrange the first strong runners by hand, spacing them properly and securing each one in place with a little soil or a small stone. Then, when each row is full, cut off all additional runners that may grow. Keep the ground hoed and cultivated until late fall. The finished row should not be wider than 15 or 18 inches.—Farm Journal.

Mix Fruit Planting. Do not plant big blocks of any one variety of fruit. Mixed plantings of different kinds help the trees to fertilize each other's blossoms. Remember that the blossoms of some varieties are more or less self-fertile.

DRINK MILK SLOWLY

BEVERAGE MUST NOT BE GULPED IN QUANTITY.

Majority of People Misunderstand the Principles That Govern This Most Useful of All the Health-Giving Liquids.

The Dairy (London, Eng.) gives the following advice on drinking milk:

There is a right way and a wrong way to drink milk, and the great majority of people drink it in the latter way. That is the real reason why milk disagrees with so many people; at least it is one of the chief reasons. Milk contains all the elements necessary for maintaining the physical health of those who know how to use it properly. Indeed (says a writer in Health), most people would be better off physically if milk and entire wheat bread formed their ordinary diet. Especially is this true of delicate persons whose powers of digestion have become enfeebled. Persons suffering from nervous prostration are not able to digest meat, and will find great benefit from a purely milk diet, but the milk must not be imbibed like draughts of water—it must be sipped slowly, a teaspoonful at a time. There is a scientific reason for drinking milk very slowly, and in very small quantities. It is this: Milk curdles as soon as it comes in contact with the juice of the stomach. If a long draught of milk is taken into the stomach, the result is a large curd through which the gastric juices cannot readily penetrate and act with solvent power.

A small sip of milk makes a tiny curd, so if a tumbler of milk is taken sip by sip, it will readily be seen that the result will be a number of little curds, each one of which can speedily be acted upon and digested by the gastric juices of the stomach.

Where special nourishment is desirable, as in the case of very weak persons, or convalescents from wasting diseases, beef and wheat peptones may be added, or some one of the infant foods which are known to be absolutely free from starch.

It is unwise to add starch foods like farina or arrowroot or cornstarch to the milk for weak people or invalids, under the impression that the foods are very delicate and easily digestible, for they are, on the contrary, very difficult of digestion. Milk alone is far better for persons who have weak digestive powers, but the one great need which must be impressed on everyone is the need of drinking slowly and in very small sips with intervals between the sips. In nine cases out of ten, milk taken in this manner will agree with people unless there is some fault in the milk.

Water may be taken in long draughts without danger, provided the system is not weak and overburdened by running or other exercise, but milk should always be imbibed slowly.

Would Bequeath His Ear.

Harriet Martineau displayed originality in the provisions she made at one time for the disposal of her remains. James Farn relates that, having consulted Toynbee, the distinguished artist, with regard to her deafness, "she was so pleased with the interest he took in her case that she resolved to leave him, by testamentary bequest, her ears. She announced this intention in the presence of her medical man, Mr. Shepherd, who, to my infinite amazement, observed: "But my dear madam, you can't do that; it will make your other legacy worthless." The fact was, in the interests of science, Miss Martineau had already left her head to the Phrenological society. I asked the doctor how he came to know that. "Oh," he said, "he told me so herself; she has left $50 in her codicil to me for cutting it off." The doctor, however, died before his patient, and the Phrenological society never received the legacy of her head.

The Critic's Duty.

It is sometimes the painful duty of a judge to order a man to be hanged by the neck till he be dead; it is sometimes the painful duty of a critic to tell an author that his English is faulty, his arguments fallacious, and his imagination a minus quantity. But it is never the duty of a judge to mingle with the dreadful utterance of doom sarcastic remarks about the prisoner's inferior social status; nor is it ever the duty of a critic to mention an author's connection with "tail-pipe," or to sneer at his poverty, or to insist on the fact that his work was originally printed in a journal purchasable for the sum of one half-penny.—Arthur Mathen, in T. P.'s Weekly, London.

What He Remembered.

"An' ye fell from a window, Jerry? How far was it ye fell?"
"Tis stories."
"Well, well! That was a great fall. And what did ye think of on your way down?"

"Necorrry. I didn't think of nobthin' until I passed th' fifth story. This I remembered I left me pipe on the window sill."

Quite Sure of One Thing.

"Heary," said the rich old uncle, "if you think I am likely to die suddenly some day when I least expect it, you may as well rid your mind of that idea. There is nothing whatever the matter with my heart."

"You'll never die of enlargement of it, anyway, uncle," cheerfully reassured the spendthrift nephew.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—When the making of the tariff law of 1909 shall have become a matter of completed history, it will be found that never before has such a task presented itself to a political party for adjustment, and it will be shown that only a party having in view the best interests of the whole country without regard to section or class could have finally agreed upon any bill whatever. It would have been impossible for the Democratic party to have agreed, or for the Populists or the Socialists—no party excepting a body made up of men who could sacrifice personal interests and sectional interests for the best good of the whole country. It is a most thorough vindication of Republicanism as embodied in the example of our President and party leader and of our Senators and Representatives in Congress. It has shown us as we could not have known it in any other way, the personal character of Mr. Taft and his methods of carrying out what he believed to be wise and honest results. There was no big stock flourished; there were no big threats used; there was no coercion—simply calm and deliberate persuasion until, for the most part, he accomplished his purpose.

At all times in our history the members of all political parties have been more or less divided over the schedules and rates of a tariff law. We are geographically so vast a country, and our interests are so widely diversified that it would seem almost impossible to harmonize and agree on rates applicable to all sections and all interests, and never was this so apparent as at the present. Naturally as production and consumption increases and methods become more varied, as machinery becomes more effective, and as both capital and labor increase in such enormous volumes, as has been the case during the last decade, the various needs and wants of different sections must be very far apart. It is almost to be wondered at that any tariff bill could be agreed upon by these various interests, and by men having such divergent views, and it is to the honor and glory of the Republican party as a whole that it could give the country a law agreed upon by its majority and signed by its President.

It remains, of course, to be seen whether the operation of the law will be successful, whether we shall prosper as we have under preceding tariffs. It remains to be seen whether sufficient revenue will come, both from the duties on imports and the internal revenue. It remains to be seen whether importations will increase to such an extent as to displace domestic productions, and it remains to be seen whether we become a country giving full employment to our wage-earners at the highest wages on the face of the earth, or whether the wages must be reduced and the purchasing power of the people curtailed.

(One thing, however, should result from the operation of the new law, and that is if not lower prices, certainly no increase. There is not an item in the bill that will warrant an increase in price by the manufacturer or merchant—not one, and if this is attempted it will be an imposition that should be resented by the people, and not charged to the operation of the law. This has been the thought in the minds of those who have agreed with him in the reductions carried by the bill, and should this result obtain without a reduction of wages, or without a decrease in the volume of employment, then surely the work of the extra session of 1909 will be of inestimable value to the country and redound to the credit of the Republican party who promised it and carried out its pledges.

A recent incident in the reconstruction of the Democratic Congressional Committee is very significant as to its bearings upon the election of 1912. This committee is now wholly a Bryan committee—the opponents of Mr. Bryan, notably, the secretary, Representative Clark, of Florida, having been ousted. It leaves no doubt whatever in the minds of the political leaders that Mr. Bryan means to try for another nomination three years hence, and that means, of course, Republican success at the polls should he be successful in the convention, and at the present time it looks as if Mr. Bryan might be successful in gaining the nomination because his opponents are as ever very much divided, and there seems no prospect of them getting together upon any candidate. Of course it gives Mr. Bryan a considerable time in which to work up a new hobby. Whether or not the Republican party has stolen all his clothes he will have to invent a new raiment and put forth some new text to gain a hearing in 1912—in the meantime the Republican party at the next session of Congress will undoubtedly put into execution many new laws that are needed to carry on the principles and policies of the party and in response to the recommendations that will be made by President Taft in his first annual message.

Following this legislation and the first year of operation of the new tariff law will come the Congressional elections of 1910 and the Republican leaders are not unmindful of the fact that there are many doubtful districts because of one reason or other, and that an election between two Presidential elections is always fought with doubt. And yet there is the utmost confidence that not only will the present Republican majority be maintained in the next House, but that it will be considerably increased in spite of the fact that the Democratic Congressional Committee has seen fit to announce that it is going to work a year before the usual time.

It is believed that next year the people will again be as prosperous as they were for the ten years preceding the so-called panic of 1907—it is believed that they will vote for prosperity and progress that come through Republican legislation; it is believed that the operation of the new tariff law will bring such employment and such an increase of wages in the aggregate as to make all present difficulties forgotten, and that while some interests may possibly suffer temporarily to some extent, yet the whole good of the whole country will be so great as to make the people satisfied with general conditions.

PRODUCTION OF ASBESTOS IN 1908.

Geological Survey's Report.

All the asbestos mined and sold in the United States in 1908 was mined in Georgia and Vermont, and the total output of the various grades was 936 short tons, an increase from 1907 of over 43 per cent. The total value of the output of refined asbestos in 1908 was $19,631, as compared with $11,839 in 1907, an increase of 64 per cent. According to the report on asbestos by J. B. Diller in the "Mineral Resources" series of the United States Geological Survey for 1908, the increase in value thus indicated is due to the greater production than ever before of chrysotile, the variety of asbestos mineral which is best adapted to textile process and commands the highest prices. The main source of raw material, however, continues to be Canada, whence came all but $1,616 worth of the imports into the United States in 1908, valued at $1,064,322. Much over half of the asbestos exported by Canada came to the United States. The United States leads all other countries in the manufacture of asbestos products.

Asbestos in the Grand Canyon. The best asbestos yet found in the United States is near the bottom of the Grand Canyon of Arizona. It is composed of chrysotile of exceptional quality. The outcrop is extensive, but as the product must be packed on donkeys about 12 miles down one side of the canyon and 4,000 feet up the other side, and thence be hauled 20 miles to the railroad, only the hand-cobbed, best grade of material can be shipped at present.

Uses of Asbestos.

The variety of uses of the fireproof and insulating qualities of asbestos is constantly increasing. One of the notable applications in recent years is as a pigment under the name "asbestine," which on account of its fibrous structure has the property of holding up heavier pigments in the paint. Mixtures of asbestos with various compounds play an important part in fireproof construction. Such materials are asbestos holding lumber, century shingles, asbestos slate, asbestos for stucco and plaster, and asbestolite.

Industry Well Established.

The asbestos trade suffered little in the recent depression, and though the outlook for the coming year is for lower prices on the lower grades of material, high grade grades and fibers will probably remain at the present prices. The whole industry is better established now than ever before, and with stable trade conditions most greatly increases in volume.

INSTEAD.

When I am dead, forget me dear,
For I shall never know
Through o'er my cold and lifeless hands
Your loving tears should flow.
I'll cancel with my living voice
The debt you'll owe the dead—
Give me the love you'd show me then
But give it now instead.

And bring no wreaths to deck my grave
For I shall never care,
Though all the flowers I loved the most
Should bloom and grow and there,
I'll sell my chance for all the flowers
You'd lavish when I'm dead—
For one small bunch of violets now
So give me that instead.

What waits for me when we are gone?
But what's the use to me
Of poems written on my tomb
For other eyes to read
One little word of praise
By lips we worship said
Is worth a hundred epitaphs—
Dear, say it now instead.

And faults that now are hard to bear,
Oblivion then shall wipe,
Our sins are soon forgiven us,
When we no more can sin.
But my little thought of me—
Keep it for when I'm dead;
I shall not know, I shall not care,
Forgive me now instead.

What waits for me when we are gone?
But what's the use to me
Of poems written on my tomb
For other eyes to read
One little word of praise
By lips we worship said
Is worth a hundred epitaphs—

But my little thought of me—
Keep it for when I'm dead;
I shall not know, I shall not care,
Forgive me now instead.

What waits for me when we are gone?
But what's the use to me
Of poems written on my tomb
For other eyes to read
One little word of praise
By lips we worship said
Is worth a hundred epitaphs—
Dear, say it now instead.

And faults that now are hard to bear,
Oblivion then shall wipe,
Our sins are soon forgiven us,

DUSTPAN WITH LONG HANDLE

Elimination of a Back-Breaking Feature of the Daily Household Routine.

Women are generally agreed that one of the most serious features of household work is the incessant stooping which seems to be necessary in the performance of the daily routine of the household work. Doctors claim that it is this stooping which is in large measure responsible for the many ailments and ailments which women are afflicted with which the men are free from. So many of her daily tasks require that she should lean or stoop over that it is not long before this unnatural attitude is responsible for some serious and chronic illness which often makes her an invalid for the rest of her life.

The stoopless dustpan which has been recently invented enables her to do the work of gathering up the accumulations on the floor without the least inclination of her body. The new implement has a long handle by which it is carried conveniently and at the same time the handle controls the operation of a lid which opens for the reception of the dust when the pan is placed on the floor and as it is raised after gathering up the accumulations, the lid closes, hiding the contents from view and preventing their being scattered by the wind or by accident.

MAKES SHEETS LAST LONGER

Housekeeper Tells How She Accomplishes This Much-to-Be-Desired Result Simply.

Some housekeepers still disdain the commercial brand of bed linen and make up their own sheets. A writer in the Lancet says: "Since blankets and dainty comfortables are much more expensive both to buy and keep clean than sheeting, I make my sheets long enough to turn back over them at least a quarter of a yard."

I am old fashioned enough to like wide and narrow hems on my sheets, appreciative all the time that through carelessness the foot of the sheet will get to the head of the bed. I buy 12½ yards of muslin for four sheets. I make a very wide hem at the top (which dignifies any sheet) and a moderately wide one at the bottom. When a sheet is about two-thirds worn out and ready to be "turned," I take out the upper wide hem, and put in its place the narrow one I can make. The moderately narrow hem then becomes the top or wide one, the sheet is thus reversed, bringing the wear in a different place. Sheets treated in this way will last half again as long.

Ribs of Spring Lamb Roasted.
Neatly trim a good-sized rib of spring lamb. Lay it in a small, lightly buttered roasting pan. Season with a teaspoonful of salt and a half teaspoonful of white pepper, well rubbed in all over. Pour a tablespoonful of hot water into the pan. Spread half an ounce of butter over the ribs. Put in a brick oven to roast for ten minutes, then turn it over, baste it well and let roast for 25 minutes more. Dress on a hot dish. Skim the fat from the gravy. Strain the gravy over the lamb. Decorate the dish with a grill of mint sauce in a sauceboat separately.

Fish Croquettes.
Rub together three tablespoonfuls of flour, one of butter, and stir into one-half pint of rich milk. Add a teaspoonful of grated onion. Roll with it thickness, then stir in two cups of cold cooked fish and let the mixture boil up again. Season with salt and pepper and set aside. When cold roll into croquettes, dip in beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry in hot fat. Serve with peas, cream, or fresh string beans garnished with slices of hard-boiled eggs.

Ham Mutton.
Two tablespoonfuls of baking powder sifted with one pint of flour; add one egg, well beaten, one cupful of sweet milk, one tablespoonful of sugar, pinch of salt. Stir in one cupful of finely chopped raw ham with a little of the fat, bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven in gem pans.

Sandwich Mixture.
A nice sandwich mixture that is particularly suitable for the summer season is made from the red currant sauce with cream cheese. Strain the juice from the currants and mix with the cheese to a soft paste.

Roast Beef.
Dish two pounds of roast beef, steak, well sliced for an hour in a quart of water, strain, add juice of one lemon, and sugar to taste after it is cold.

WIT AND WISDOM.

The Woman Question.
"I was handed another installment of the eternal woman question this morning," remarked the benedict.
"What's the answer?" queried the young bachelor.
"My wife asked me if her hat was on straight," replied the freight-paying party of the matrimonial party.—Chicago Daily News.

CURED HAY FEVER AND SUMMER COLIC.

A. S. Nesbitt, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." W. L. Bosserman, Bethel, Chas. E. Fernald, Rumford Falls.

TELEPHONE TOLL RATES

To familiarize the public with the low rates of TELEPHONE TOLL MESSAGES the following table is published. It is approximate rather than exact, but it will serve as a fairly accurate basis on which to estimate the charges for a THREE-MINUTE CONVERSATION:

Distance of	Approximate Rate
10 miles or less	10 cents
10 to 15 miles	15 cents
15 to 25 miles	20 cents
25 to 35 miles	25 cents
35 to 45 miles	30 cents
45 to 55 miles	35 cents
55 to 65 miles	40 cents
65 to 75 miles	45 cents
75 to 85 miles	50 cents
85 to 90 miles	55 cents
90 to 100 miles	60 cents

Proportionately low rates for more distant points.

The telephone furnishes the QUICKEST, MOST SATISFACTORY, and in many respects the MOST ECONOMICAL method of communication. You are assured of Prompt Delivery of your Message. Knowledge of When and to Whom Delivered. Direct Personal Communication. Service at Almost Any Hour—Day or Night.

sons admitted prior to 1890, but not all, for all were not recorded.

To use the dates that may be obtained from 1840 to 1890, would be an impossibility. I have left them all out of this enumeration between these two dates, but have arranged the names alphabetically.

WEST STONEHAM.

Hot and dry and wells and springs
are getting very low.

Winifred McKee is working for Mrs. J. A. Andrews.

Uncle Jim McAllister is quite poorly.
Daryl McKee came home sick of scalds from East Stoneham, where she has been at work, one day last week. Goldie Adams took her place for a few days.

Deaths at J. C. Sawyer's last Sunday were his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McAllister of North Lovell, and their cousin, Mr. and Mrs.
Herman McAllister of Lovell.

Carl Keniston of Lovell, is helping his grandfather, Wm. Gammon, finish his house.

Samuel Paine has quite a crew bay-
ing.

Mr. H. McKee is having a bad trouble with his side. His friends are afraid it will result in appendicitis.

The grasshoppers are very plentiful and are eating up the little feed the dry weather has left.

FOR TILES.

Several roofs are in need of being re-tiled. As soon as the weather settles, the following are ready to undertake the work.

Belting Ready for the Opera.
"Aren't you ready, dear?" he called sympathetically.

"Not quite," was the wife's reply.
"It ought not to take you so long to get your hat on."

"I'm not going to wear any hat."
"Well, it ought not to take you so long not to get one on!"—Yehuda Guttmann.

FROM DIFFERENT VIEWPOINTS.

Anonymous Mother—I cannot permit
you to have such late callers. It was after 11 o'clock when Mr. Higgins left last night.

Pretty Daughter—Why, mamma, I don't see how you can claim Mr. Higgins as a late caller. It was only 7:30 when he came.

PARENTAL WISDOM.

The Friend—Your son graduates
from college this term, I believe?

The Father—Yes.

The Friend—Going to get him up in business, I suppose?

The Father—Not right away. I'm going to send him to school awhile
first.

AT AUNTIE'S.

His Wife—Charlie carries a multitude of sins, they say.

Her Husband—Yes, it certainly does—especially when it begins to rain.

THE ROSE THAT SPED.

Tommy had just dropped a half-penny in front of the blind beggar to see if he would pick it up.

Beggar—Make it a shilling, please,
and I'll forget myself.

THE TEST.

"This has no many relations as a

SPIRITUALIST MEDIUMS ARE UNCONSCIOUSLY CON-TROLLED BY THE GREAT EVIL SPIRIT, SAYS THIS COMMUNICATION.

Editor Oxford County Citizen,
Dear Sir—

Noting an article in the Citizen of July 15th, on the subject of Spiritualism, I kindly ask the permission to advance a few thoughts on the same subject from a Bible standpoint, as I believe this to be the only source from which we can get the true information needed on this important subject at this time. Spiritualism in its true sense is beyond the power of man to fathom and understand but by the word of God it can be tested and understood. Excepting the power of God
it is the greatest that exists, far greater than the power of man. It is the power of the great deceiver, therefore it deceives every member who does not put his trust in the word of God.

When this is discussed, generally the first Bible instance referred to is the case of King Saul and the witch of Endor. So by reading the 28th chapter of 1 Sam. verses 3-20, it will be seen that Samuel was dead and not alive as is generally taught by those who believe that mortal man is immortal, and the foundation of this great deception is founded on the first great lie told by Satan to our first parents in the garden of Eden.

God told them that if they ate or even touched of the fruit of the tree of knowledge that they should surely die. And the serpent said "ye shall not surely die." This statement of the devil is the foundation of every false religion that exists today, especially Spiritualism. Verse 4 of chapter 3, states positively that when Saul inquired of the Lord that the Lord answered him not.

Then Saul commanded his servants
to seek him a woman that had a familial spirit, the same thing as a spirit medium of today. Webster says:
A familiar spirit is a demon, or evil
spirit, supposed to attend to a call.

In Deut. 18: 10-12 the Lord says that all who have to do with this class is an abomination unto him.

In 1 Sam. 28: 14, it will be seen that Saul did not see Samuel at all himself, but perceived that it was Samuel by the description given him by the witch in verse 15. Saul admits that God had departed from him, and so it cannot be supposed that "no who is an abomination unto the Lord could have power over a prophet of the living God supposing that they could be brought from the dead, which power
God alone has.

We read further from the book of Isa. Chap. 8, verse 19, A. R. V., "And when they shall say unto you, seek unto them that have familiar spirits;
and unto wizards that peep and that mutter; should not a people seek unto their God, for should the living seek unto the dead.

Why should they not seek unto the dead? Let God answer "His sons come to hear and he knoweth it not; they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them. Job. 14: 21, His breath
goeth forth he returneth to his earth;
in that very day his thoughts perish,
Ps. 116: 4. In Psal. 9: 5, 6, it is stated that the dead know not any thing,
also their love, their hatred and envy are now perished; neither have they any more a portion for ever in any thing that is done under the sun.

By these texts from the word of God it is plainly seen that nothing can be gained by trying to contact with the dead, but we do learn what the penalty of so doing will be. In 1st Corin. 10: 13-14 is a solemn lesson for all to heed. Saul died in the way that he did for disobeying God for making (himself) of one that had a familiar spirit, to inquire of it. Therefore the Lord slew him and turned the kingdom unto David the son of Jesse. That Spiritualism is a doctrine of the devil is admitted by some of its own advocates.

In the "Banner of Light" is the following question and answer, the answer being given by a controlling spirit
through a Mrs. Conant, at that time a well known medium.

Q. "Do you know of any such spirit as a person we call the devil?"

A. "We certainly do, and yet this same devil is our God, our father."

Also Dr. Childs in Banner of Light
(an official organ of the Spiritualist belief) says that there are two classes of spirits. "The lower spirit seek to undo the good work of the higher;
these will sometimes deceive the mediums for their own amusement, but the wise spirits desigiously deceive us for our good," so all of the spirits are deceivers by their own admission.

It is safe to say that there are no other class of intelligences that are gaining adherents so rapidly as are the Spiritualists; millions are in their ranks and they will soon have the most of the world with them according to the Bible testimony. And what does it mean? Rev. 16: 14, says "that they are the spirits of devils working miracles with signs and tokens, the signs of the earth and of the whole world." How many will be deceived? Rev. 18: 2, says the whole world will be deceived
by the devil and the seven spirits given to him, the world turns from the HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings
That No Maine Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick.
Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Rumford Falls proof:

A. B. Gilpatrick, Chief of Police, living on Lincoln St., Rumford Falls, Me., says: "During the past year I was annoyed at times by the kidney secretions. I felt miserable and at last decided to try a good kidney remedy.
I heard so many people speak in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills that I procured a box. Although I did not use the remedy in strict accordance with the directions I nevertheless received great relief in a short time. I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other persons annoyed as I was."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

OPTOMETRY BOARD ORGAN-IZED.

The board consists of the following members: Dr. Blal P. Bradbury, Norway; Dr. Jarvis B. Wood, Bangor; George McL. Presson, Farmington;
John R. Roche, Eastport; Albert M.
Westworth, Portland.

The organization has been effected
by the election of George McL. Presson, president, Albert M. Westworth secretary and John R. Roche, treasurer.

On September 2nd, 1909, a meeting of the board will be held at the Congress Square Hotel, Portland, for the purpose of taking action upon applications for exemption certificates.

On a later date (time and place not yet decided upon) the board will meet for the purpose of examining all eligible applicants desiring to commence the practice of optometry in the State of Maine, under restrictions of the law,
which took effect July 2nd, 1909.

It is especially requested by the board that all applications for exemption certificates be sent to the secretary before August 24, 1909.

It has been decided by the board to allow residents of the State not exempt by law and who have made application for exemption to continue to practice until the date of the first examination held by the board, which will probably be within 60 days.

Application blanks for exemption or examination can be obtained from A.
M. Westworth, secretary, Portland.

truth (the word of God) 1 Thes. 3: 10
The doctrine of the immortality of the soul is something indispensable to almost every prominent religious system. It is the corner stone of healthfulness. All, or nearly all, the gods of heathenism are dead men who were turned into gods by dying. They are simply the immortal souls of the dead.
Spiritualism is simply the embodiment of the doctrine of natural immortality.
It is incapable of existing without it.
And as man is still mortal Rom. 6: 12, Spiritualism is not based on the Bible
and is therefore a false doctrine.

F. H. ORANT,

Mr. Grant has argued the question ably, and from the viewpoint of an Adventist—that is one who believes that there is no future life with the millennium comes, when there will be a bodily resurrection of all believers in the Messiahship of Jesus the Christ—
